Parks and Recreation to Rededicate Cosmo-Bethel Park

Columbia Parks and Recreation will rededicate Cosmo-Bethel Park this Sunday, October 12. The rededication will take place at 1 p.m. during the department's One Sky, One World kite-flying event.

The 40-acre park at 4500 Bethel Street features many improvements and some new features. A new playground was constructed at the park in 2007, as well as a new picnic shelter on the south side of the park. Construction is ending on four new tennis courts, new restrooms, and a new shelter, which replaces the cluster of shelters there previously. The improvements were made possible by the voter-approved park sales tax.

The rededication will include remarks by city officials, a ribbon-cutting ceremony, giveaways and refreshments.
